World and how to make it a better place to live for all.

Australian's Most Senior Experienced Person
In Government Corruption and False Flag Terrorism

Dear Police Commissioners

And Senior Staff, who have not been compromised, Corrupted and turned to the dark evil side of helping to carry out False Flag Terrorism against your fellow Citizens – countrymen.

You Have Been Scammed & Conned

Of all these 6 “Special Terrorism Threat Reports” written for our State Police Forces in Australia this will be the most dangerous one of all, because it exposes how everybody has been conned, scammed by Police, Military and Intelligence Chiefs over the years.

How the controlled Mainstream Media has lied to your faces.

And how politicians around the World have been threatened, bribed, black mailed, paid off, and assassinated for even speaking out and telling the truth.

But if we are ever going to beat this “Evil – Nasty” Entity sweeping the planet, who have their ultimate plans, ambitions, goals, agenda of forcing the citizens to become slaves and then set themselves up for the future as our over Lords.

Then we have to dare step out and expose their scam & con, and hope there is a few people within the system you know who I mean employed in the A, B, C, D, E, F Dept's and Agencies to turn things about.

If not we the citizens face what is to become of us, and our kids, and their kids.

That includes our Jewish brothers and sisters to wake up and see how their religion has been hijacked, used as a cover to hide behind while pushing their agenda.

There may be some that are of Jewish Faith who think, Oh that won't worry me or effect me?

Think again folks in recent months this "Evil Entity" has shown their real face by

- 1) Attacking a Jewish School in France and
- 2) Attacking one in India I think it was killing a Jewish Rabbi and wounding others.

This is unheard of before these people attacking Jewish Schools, but we are getting down to the serious end now of things of these people cementing their "Control & Power" into place and the "Security Grid" is 98% in place using our Police, Military and Intelligence Agencies as their SASSI Goons to enforce their "Control – Power" over us all.

Zionist Indoctrinated Our Police, Military and Intelligence Agencies

I have a story for people, I was talking to a friend the other day and he was saying how he argues with his Son – In – Law who is employed within the NSW Police Force, Security – Counter Terrorism area.

He told my friend to his face – he is "The Enemy"?

Like What The Fuck?

While most of us have been sleeping in our beds, watching TV, listening to music, DVD's, movies, playing our sports and generally enjoying the country and World we live in.

Quietly & Silently behind the scenes Police, Military and Intelligence Agencies here in Australia, and around the World have been "Brainwashed" – "CIA MK Ultra Mind Controlled" "Programmed" - "Indoctrinated"

We The People Are The Enemy?

Like What The Fuck?

So Listen to It People

- If you speak out about Government Corruption you're a Terrorist.
- If you speak out about Politician's Corruption you're a Terrorist.
- If you expose Police, Military, Intelligence Agencies carrying out "False Flag Terrorist Attacks" you're a Terrorist.
- If you stock up on FOOD & Water supplies you're a Terrorist.
- If you feed the sick, lonely, hungry, homeless people you're a Terrorist.
- If you read "Alternative Independent News Media" you're a Terrorist.
- If you dare question Mainstream Media lying in stories, creating bullshit stories and "DON'T Believe" what your told to "Believe" you're a Terrorist.
- If you know about the Constitution, Laws and quote them to Police or Government figures you're a Terrorist.

So while we were all asleep Australian Police, Military and Intelligence Agencies have been secretly "Programmed Behind Our Backs"

“Indoctrinated” to believe all the above and much worst ready to “Enforce The Whole Of The Human Race” citizens of planet earth into “Slavery” and under this “Evil Entity” control for carrying out their plans, agenda, goals, plans, ambitions.

That all being said to un-program people, un – brainwash people I have the following for people to read, by the end it would of educated people, woken people up, and they will know the truth.

Zionism A Fairy Tale That’s Become a Terrifying Nightmare

The Real Story of How Israel Was Created

This is going to shock most people, and many will live in denial of the truth, I know the truth is hard to accept, understand when you have been programmed into believing lies.

But the State of Israel has NO RIGHT To Exist!

The Government of Israel has NO RIGHT To Exist!

The IDF Military with its 200 – 400 Nuclear Weapons has NO Right to have them!

The Israeli Mossad Intelligence Terrorist Agency has NO Right to Exist!

So you know all these Terrorist Attacks about the World which the (American CIA & Israeli Mossad) sometimes join hand in hand in carrying out?

The Israeli Mossad, which formed from a “Group Of Jewish Terrorist” which should have been prosecuted, tried and executed for carrying out Terrorist Attacks about the World.

If it was not for them "Blowing Up The Kind David Hotel" where the British had records of these "Jewish Groups Terrorist Crimes" but was all swept under the carpet and then these "Jewish Terrorist Groups" went onto forming the "Israeli Mossad"

Well seem all the Police, Military and Intelligence Agencies that have now been infiltrated, brainwashed, indoctrinated to accept the "Israeli Mossad Terrorism Acts" around the World as normal.

Seem you Western Police, Military and Intelligence Agencies have been "CONNED" – "SCAMMED"

But don't believe me?

You read the following for yourselves and you will see at "Law" they DO NOT have the "Legal Right" or "Justification" for what they have been doing.

Why Do the Illuminati Hate Jews?

All people of the Jewish Faith better read this story, so you think the Zionist care about the Jews?

You think the Zionist serve Jewish interest?

Zionism A Fairy Tale That's Become a Terrifying Nightmare

Most Jews of the world (and probably many Gentiles) believe that Zionism is the return of Jews to the land promised to them by God.

At the risk of offending some readers of all faiths for saying so, I must confess, and do so cheerfully, that I don't buy this concept because the Gentile me does not believe in the God of organized, institutional religions.

So, I say to myself, no God, no promise to Jews (or anybody else).

In my perception of the scheme of things, God is the potential for good inside each and every one of us.

God so defined is a prisoner within each of us and our prime task is to liberate this prisoner.

But let's put that to one side.

The Jews who "returned" in answer to Zionism's call had no biological connection to the ancient Hebrews.

They were converts to Judaism long after the end of the Hebrew conquest and short-lived domination of much of Canaan, the name as in the Bible by which Palestine was first known to the world.

They therefore had no legitimate claim on the land.

The Jews who did have a legitimate claim, probably not more than about 10,000 at the time of Zionism's first dishonest mission statement in 1897, were the direct descendants of the Israelites who stayed in place on the land through time.

They regarded themselves as Palestinians, and they were fiercely opposed to Zionism's colonial enterprise because they feared it would make them as well as the incoming alien Jews enemies of the Palestinian Arabs.

Also true is that prior to the obscenity of the Nazi holocaust, most Jews of the world were not at all interested in Zionism's colonial enterprise and many were opposed to it.

The most informed and thoughtful of those who did express their opposition believed that Zionism was morally wrong.

They also feared that Zionism's colonial enterprise would lead to unending conflict.

But most of all they feared that Zionism, if it was allowed by the major powers to have its way, would one day provoke anti-Semitism.

Which is precisely what is happening today.

(Hence the book, ZIONISM: THE REAL ENEMY OF THE JEWS).

In reality it is how the Zionists created their state - a Zionist not a Jewish state - that best defines what Zionism actually is.

Israel was created, mainly, by Zionist terrorism and ethnic cleansing - a pre-planned process that saw three-quarters of the indigenous Arab inhabitants of Palestine dispossessed of their homes, their land and their rights.

Zionism asserts that its state was given its birth certificate and thus legitimacy by the UN Partition Resolution of 29 November 1947.

That is propaganda nonsense.

The truth can be summarized as follows.

- In the first place the UN without the consent of the majority of the people of Palestine did not have the right to decide to partition Palestine or assign any part of its territory to a minority of alien immigrants in order for them to establish a state of their own.
- By the narrowest of margins, and only after a rigged vote, the UN General Assembly did pass a resolution to partition Palestine and create two states, one Arab, one Jewish, with Jerusalem not part of either.

- But the General Assembly resolution was only a recommendation - meaning that it could have no effect, would not become policy, unless approved by the Security Council.
- The General Assembly's recommendation never went to the Security Council for consideration because the U.S. knew that, if approved, it could only be implemented by force given the extent of Arab and other Muslim opposition to it and President Truman was not prepared to use force to partition Palestine.
- So the partition plan was vitiated (became invalid) and the question of what the hell to do about Palestine - after Britain had made a mess of it and walked away, effectively surrendering to Zionist terrorism - was taken back to the General Assembly for more discussion. The option favoured and proposed by the U.S. was temporary UN Trusteeship.

It was while the General Assembly was debating what do that Israel unilaterally declared itself to be in existence - actually in defiance of the will of the organised international community, including the Truman administration.

The truth of the time was that the Zionist state had no right to exist and, more to the point, could have no right to exist UNLESS ...

Unless it was recognised and legitimised by those Zionism had dispossessed of their land and their rights.

In international law only the Palestinians could give Israel the legitimacy it craved.

SEARCH FOR TRUTH

What is a Zionist today?

Short answer: One, not necessarily a Jew, who (to quote Balfour) supports the Zionist state of Israel “right or wrong” and who cannot or will not admit that a terrible wrong was done to the Palestinians by Zionism - a wrong that must be acknowledged and then corrected on terms acceptable to the Palestinians if there is ever to be peace and the countdown to catastrophe for all is to be stopped.

The Arab word for the catastrophe of the original dispossession of the Palestinians is Nakba.

In my view, Zionism's Nakba denial is as obscene and as evil as denial of the Nazi holocaust.

One thing nobody can deny is the effectiveness of Zionism's propaganda machine.

Zionism's spin doctors probably learned from the Nazis that the bigger the lies and the more frequently they are told, the more likely it is that they will be believed in the mainly Gentile, Judeo-Christian or Western world and all the more so when the mainstream media is terrified of offending Zionism either too much or at all.

The biggest of all of Zionism's propaganda lies is the one, which asserts that Israel has lived in constant danger of annihilation, the “driving into the sea” of its Jews.

Israel's existence has never, ever, been in danger from any combination of Arab force.

Not in 1948.

Not in 1967.

And not even in 1973.

Zionism's assertion to the contrary was the cover which allowed Israel to get away where it mattered most, in North America and Western Europe, with presenting its aggression (often state terrorism) as self-defence, and itself as the victim when actually it was, and is, the oppressor.

The companion propaganda lie is that Israel never had Arab partners for peace.

Zionism has two hallmarks.

One is self-righteousness of a most extraordinary kind.

In 1986 Yehoshafat Harkabi, a former Director of Israeli Military Intelligence, as "the biggest real danger" to the Jewish state, described this self-righteousness.

The other hallmark is a shocking and awesome arrogance of military and economic power and the influence the latter buys, most critically in the U.S. Congress where what passes for democracy is for sale to the highest bidders.

On the matter of truth as it relates to the making and sustaining of conflict in and over Palestine that became Israel, I hope the German philosopher Arthur Schopenhauer (1788-1860) is right

All truth passes through three stages.

First, it is ridiculed.

Second, it is violently opposed.

Third, it is accepted as being self-evident.

If that's true, Zionism not only can be defeated but also will be.

The Real Story of How Israel Was Created

To better understand the Palestinian bid for membership in the United Nations, it is important to understand the original 1947 U.N. action on Israel-Palestine.

The common representation of Israel's birth is that the U.N. created Israel, that the world was in favor of this move, and that the U.S. governmental establishment supported it. All these assumptions are demonstrably incorrect.

In reality, while the U.N. General Assembly recommended the creation of a Jewish state in part of Palestine, that recommendation was non-binding and never implemented by the Security Council.

Second, the General Assembly passed that recommendation only after Israel proponents threatened and bribed numerous countries in order to gain a required two-thirds of votes.

Third, the U.S. administration supported the recommendation out of domestic electoral considerations and took this position over the strenuous objections of the State Department, the CIA, and the Pentagon.

The passage of the General Assembly recommendation sparked increased violence in the region.

Over the following months the armed wing of the pro-Israel movement, which had long been preparing for war, perpetrated a series of massacres and expulsions throughout Palestine, implementing a plan to clear the way for a majority-Jewish state.

SEARCH FOR TRUTH

It was this armed aggression, and the ethnic cleansing of at least three-quarters of a million indigenous Palestinians that created the Jewish state on land that had been 95 percent non-Jewish prior to Zionist immigration and that even after years of immigration remained 70 percent non-Jewish.

And despite the shallow patina of legality its partisans extracted from the General Assembly, Israel was born over the opposition of American experts and of governments around the world, who opposed it on both pragmatic and moral grounds.

Let us look at the specifics.

Background of the U.N. Partition Recommendation

In 1947 the U.N. took up the question of Palestine, a territory that was then administered by the British.

Approximately 50 years before, a movement called political Zionism had begun in Europe.

Its intention was to create a Jewish state in Palestine through pushing out the Christian and Muslim inhabitants who made up over 95 percent of its population and replacing them with Jewish immigrants.

As this colonial project grew through subsequent years, the indigenous Palestinians reacted with occasional bouts of violence Zionists had anticipated this since people usually resist being expelled from their land.

In various written documents cited by numerous Palestinian and Israeli historians, they discussed their strategy.

They would either buy up the land until all the previous inhabitants had emigrated or, failing this, use violence to force them out.

When the buy-out effort was able to obtain only a few percent of the land, Zionists created a number of terrorist groups to fight against both the Palestinians and the British.

Terrorist and future Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin later bragged that Zionists had brought terrorism both to the Middle East and to the world at large.

Finally, in 1947 the British announced that they would be ending their control of Palestine, which had been created through the League of Nations following World War I, and turned the question of Palestine over to the United Nations.

At this time, the Zionist immigration and buyout project had increased the Jewish population of Palestine to 30 percent and land ownership from 1 percent to approximately 6 percent.

Since a founding principle of the U.N. was "self-determination of peoples," one would have expected to the U.N. to support fair, democratic elections in which inhabitants could create their own independent country.

Instead, Zionists pushed for a General Assembly resolution in which they would be given a disproportionate 55 percent of Palestine.

(While they rarely announced this publicly, their stated plan was to later take the rest of Palestine.)

U.S. Officials Oppose Partition Plan

The U.S. State Department opposed this partition plan strenuously, considering Zionism contrary to both fundamental American principles and U.S. interests.

Author Donald Neff reports that Loy Henderson, Director of the State Department's Office of Near Eastern and African Affairs, wrote a memo to the secretary of state warning

[S] support by the Government of the United States of a policy favoring the setting up of a Jewish State in Palestine would be contrary to the wishes of a large majority of the local inhabitants with respect to their form of government. Furthermore, it would have a strongly adverse effect upon American interests throughout the near and Middle East" [Citations.]

Henderson went on to emphasize: -

At the present time the United States has a moral prestige in the Near and Middle East unequaled by that of any other great power.

We would lose that prestige and would be likely for many years to be considered as a betrayer of the high principles, which we ourselves have enunciated during the period of the war.

When Zionists began pushing for a partition plan through the U.N., Henderson recommended strongly against supporting their proposal.

He warned that such a partition would have to be implemented by force and emphasized that it was "not based on any principle."

He went on to write: -

[Partition] would guarantee that the Palestine problem would be permanent and still more complicated in the future

Henderson went on to emphasize: -

[proposals for partition] are in definite contravention to various principles laid down in the [U.N.] Charter as well as to principles on which American concepts of Government are based.

These proposals, for instance, ignore such principles as self-determination and majority rule.

They recognize the principle of a theocratic racial state and even go so far in several instances as to discriminate on grounds of religion and race

Henderson was far from alone in making his recommendations.

He wrote that his views were not only those of the entire Near East Division but were shared by “nearly every member of the Foreign Service or of the Department who has worked to any appreciable extent on Near Eastern problems.”

Henderson wasn't exaggerating.

Official after official and agency after agency opposed Zionism.

In 1947 the CIA reported that Zionist leadership was pursuing objectives that would endanger both Jews and “the strategic interests of the Western powers in the near and Middle East.”

Truman Accedes to Pro-Israel Lobby

President Harry Truman, however, ignored this advice. Truman's political adviser, Clark Clifford, believed that the Jewish vote and contributions were essential to winning the upcoming presidential election and that supporting the partition plan would garner that support.

(Truman's opponent, Dewey, took similar stands for similar reasons.)

Secretary of State George Marshall, the renowned World War II general and author of the Marshall Plan, was furious to see electoral considerations taking precedence over policies based on national interest.

He condemned what he called a “transparent dodge to win a few votes,” which would cause “the great dignity of the office of president [to be] seriously diminished.”

Marshall wrote that the counsel offered by Clifford “was based on domestic political considerations, while the problem which confronted us was international.

I said bluntly that if the president were to follow Mr. Clifford’s advice and if in the elections I were to vote, I would vote against the president.”

Henry F. Grady, who has been called “America’s top diplomatic soldier for a critical period of the Cold War,” headed a 1946 commission aimed at coming up with a solution for Palestine.

Grady later wrote about the Zionist lobby and its damaging effect on U.S. national interests.

Grady argued that without Zionist pressure, the U.S. would not have had “the ill-will with the Arab states, which are of such strategic importance in our ‘cold war’ with the Soviets.”

He also described the decisive power of the lobby: -

I have had a good deal of experience with lobbies but this group started where those of my experience had ended.

I have headed a number of government missions but in no other have I ever experienced so much disloyalty.

In the United States, since there is no political force to counterbalance Zionism, its campaigns are apt to be decisive.

Former Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson also opposed Zionism.

Acheson's biographer writes that Acheson "worried that the West would pay a high price for Israel."

Another Author, John Mulhall, records Acheson's warning: -

To transform [Palestine] into a Jewish State capable of receiving a million or more immigrants would vastly exacerbate the political problem and imperil not only American but all Western interests in the Near East.

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal also tried, unsuccessfully, to oppose the Zionists.

He was outraged that Truman's Mideast policy was based on what he called "squalid political purposes," asserting "United States policy should be based on United States national interests and not on domestic political considerations."

Forrestal represented the general Pentagon view when he said "no group in this country should be permitted to influence our policy to the point where it could endanger our national security."

A report by the National Security Council warned that the Palestine turmoil was acutely endangering the security of the United States.

A CIA report stressed the strategic importance of the Middle East and its oil resources.

Similarly, George F. Kennan, the State Department's director of policy planning, issued a top-secret document on Jan. 19, 1947, that outlined the enormous damage done to the U.S. by the partition plan ("Report by the Policy Planning Staff on Position of the United States with Respect to Palestine").

Kennan cautioned that "important U.S. oil concessions and air base rights" could be lost through U.S. support for partition and warned that the USSR stood to gain by the partition plan.

Kermit Roosevelt, Teddy Roosevelt's nephew and a legendary intelligence agent, was another who was deeply disturbed by events.

He noted: -

The process by which Zionist Jews have been able to promote American support for the partition of Palestine demonstrates the vital need of a foreign policy based on national rather than partisan interests

Only when the national interests of the United States, in their highest terms, take precedence over all other considerations, can a logical, farseeing foreign policy be evolved.

No American political leader has the right to compromise American interests to gain partisan votes

He went on: -

The present course of world crisis will increasingly force upon Americans the realization that their national interests and those of the proposed Jewish state in Palestine are going to conflict.

It is to be hoped that American Zionists and non-Zionists alike will come to grips with the realities of the problem.

The head of the State Department's Division of Near Eastern Affairs, Gordon P. Merriam, warned against the partition plan on moral grounds:

U.S. support for partition of Palestine as a solution to that problem can be justified only on the basis of Arab and Jewish consent.

Otherwise we should violate the principle of self-determination, which has been written into the Atlantic Charter, the declaration of the United Nations, and the United Nations Charter — a principle that is deeply embedded in our foreign policy.

Even a United Nations determination in favor of partition would be, in the absence of such consent, a stultification and violation of U.N.'s own charter.

Merriam added that without consent, "bloodshed and chaos" would follow, a tragically accurate prediction.

An internal State Department memorandum accurately predicted how Israel would be born through armed aggression masked as defense:

The Jews will be the actual aggressors against the Arabs.

However, the Jews will claim that they are merely defending the boundaries of a state, which were traced by the U.N.

In the event of such Arab outside aid the Jews will come running to the Security Council with the claim that their state is the object of armed aggression and will use every means to obscure the fact that it is their own armed aggression against the Arabs inside which is the cause of Arab counter-attack.

And American Vice Consul William J. Porter foresaw another outcome of the partition plan that no Arab State would actually ever come to be in Palestine.

Pro-Israel Pressure on General Assembly Members

When it was clear that the partition recommendation did not have the required two-thirds of the U.N. General Assembly to pass, Zionists pushed through a delay in the vote.

They then used this period to pressure numerous nations into voting for the recommendation.

A number of people later described this campaign.

Robert Nathan, a Zionist who had worked for the U.S. government and who was particularly active in the Jewish Agency, wrote afterward, "We used any tools at hand," such as telling certain delegations that the Zionists would use their influence to block economic aid to any countries that did not vote the right way.

Another Zionist proudly stated, "Every clue was meticulously checked and pursued. Not the smallest or the remotest of nations, but was contacted and wooed. Nothing was left to chance."

Financier and longtime presidential adviser Bernard Baruch told France it would lose U.S. aid if it voted against partition.

Top White House executive assistant David Niles organized pressure on Liberia through rubber magnate Harvey Firestone, who told the Liberian president that if Liberia did not vote in favor of partition, Firestone would revoke his planned expansion in the country.

Liberia voted yes.

Latin American delegates were told that the Pan-American Highway construction project would be more likely if they voted yes.

Delegates' wives received mink coats (the wife of the Cuban delegate returned hers) Costa Rica's President Jose Figueres reportedly received a blank checkbook.

Haiti was promised economic aid if it would change its original vote opposing partition.

Longtime Zionist Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, along with 10 senators and Truman domestic adviser Clark Clifford, threatened the Philippines (seven bills were pending on the Philippines in Congress).

Before the vote on the plan, the Philippine delegate had given a passionate speech against partition, defending the inviolable “primordial rights of a people to determine their political future and to preserve the territorial integrity of their native land.”

He went on to say that he could not believe that the General Assembly would sanction a move that would place the world “back on the road to the dangerous principles of racial exclusiveness and to the archaic documents of theocratic governments.”

Twenty-four hours later, after intense Zionist pressure, the delegate voted in favor of partition.

The U.S. delegation to the U.N. was so outraged when Truman insisted that they support partition that the State Department director of U.N. affairs was sent to New York to prevent the delegates from resigning en masse.

On Nov. 29, 1947, the partition resolution, 181, passed.

While this resolution is frequently cited, it was of limited (if any) legal impact.

General Assembly resolutions, unlike Security Council resolutions, are not binding on member states.

For this reason, the resolution requested that “[t]he Security Council take the necessary measures as provided for in the plan for its implementation,” which the Security Council never did.

Legally, the General Assembly Resolution was a “recommendation” and did not create any states.

What it did do, however, was increase the fighting in Palestine.

Within months (and before Israel dates the beginning of its founding war) the Zionists had forced out 413,794 people.

Zionist military units had stealthily been preparing for war before the U.N. vote and had acquired massive weaponry, some of it through a widespread network of illicit gunrunning operations in the U.S. under a number of front groups.

The U.N. eventually managed to create a temporary and very partial cease-fire.

A Swedish U.N. mediator who had previously rescued thousands of Jews from the Nazis was dispatched to negotiate an end to the violence.

Israeli assassins killed him, and Israel continued what it was to call its “war of independence.”

At the end of this war, through a larger military force than that of its adversaries and the ruthless implementation of plans to push out as many non-Jews as possible, Israel came into existence on 78 percent of Palestine.

At least 33 massacres of Palestinian civilians were perpetrated, half of them before a single Arab army had entered the conflict, hundreds of villages were depopulated and razed, and a team of cartographers was sent out to give every town, village, river, and hillock a new Hebrew name.

All vestiges of Palestinian habitation, history, and culture were to be erased from history, an effort that almost succeeded.

Israel, which claims to be the “only democracy in the Middle East,” decided not to declare official borders or to write a constitution, a situation, which continues to this day.

In 1967 it took still more Palestinian and Syrian land, which is now illegally occupied territory, since the annexation of land through military conquest is outlawed by modern international law.

It has continued this campaign of growth through armed acquisition and illegal confiscation of land ever since.

Individual Israelis, like Palestinians and all people, are legally and morally entitled to an array of human rights.

On the other hand, the state of Israel’s vaunted “right to exist” is based on an alleged “right” derived from might, an outmoded concept that international legal conventions do not recognize and in fact specifically prohibit.

Why Do the Illuminati Hate Jews?

"Where the rubber meets the road, the Illuminati have an absolutely satanic hatred for Jews," a contact that did business with a prominent Illuminati family notified me.

"Jew-hatred spiritually energizes them," he continued.

"I read too much out there that falls for the lie that the conspiracy is Jewish at its highest levels.

Granted, it appears that way, and a lot of data is hard to argue with, but I have first-hand knowledge of the depth of Jew-hatred among people who are the real thing.

These people (at least the ones I knew) are not Zionist Bankers, but totally Gentile."

To all appearances Jews have a disproportionate role in the Illuminati New World Order.

How do we account for this apparent contradiction?

Illuminati defector Svali offers a clue.

Illuminati Jews have renounced their Jewish beliefs and background.

She says the Illuminati hate Israel.

"The Illuminati are racist in the extreme...

Yes, there are some very powerful Jewish people in this group. For instance, the Rothschild family literally runs the financial empire in Europe (and indirectly the States), and are a well-known Jewish family...

But to rise to power in the Illuminati, a Jewish person would be forced to renounce their faith, and to give their first allegiance to Lucifer and the beliefs of the Illuminati."

Following the research of Rabbi Marvin Antelman, Barry Chamish has exposed the heresies of Sabbatai Zvi and Jacob Frank that created a schism in European Jewry in 17th and 18th century respectively.

This was essentially a satanic movement that turned Jewish teaching on its ear.

Everything that was forbidden by God was now permitted.

Sin and not righteousness was the way to salvation.

Sexual depravity (especially wife swapping orgies) was encouraged as a means to destroy the family and the social fabric.

They wanted a clean slate on which to redesign society in their image.

A fierce hatred developed between satanic Jews and the rabbis who tried to expel the heretics from the community.

This schism was partially reflected in the divide between western Jews who shed their religion for "secular humanism and reason" and eastern Jews who remained Orthodox.

Many secular Jews became radicals as they tried to replace their lost religion with belief in a worldly utopia.

The Illuminati were able to dupe them with their fraudulent Communist promise.

"Change the World" is their deceptive slogan.

The satanic leader Jacob Frank (1726-91) formed an alliance with the Rothschild's, the power behind the Illuminati.

They started the Reform and Conservative branches of Judaism, which posed as "liberation from the confines of Jewish inner law and ghetto."

They encouraged Jews to assimilate, inter-marry, change their names and even convert to Christianity.

They tapped selected followers to advance their satanic agenda by subverting Christian civilization from within.

Sen. John Kerry's background fits this profile perfectly.

His grandfather was a Frankest Jew "Kohn" who adopted an Irish name and converted to Catholicism.

His father worked for the CIA.

His mother was part of the Forbes family, which made its fortune in the drug trade (opium), like many of America's "first families."

Kerry himself is a member of the Illuminati Skull and Bones.

During the last election, Wesley Clark discovered he was half-Jewish.

Madeleine Albright admitted she was Jewish.

Her father Josef Korbel was Condoleezza Rice's mentor at Denver University.

Before that he was accused of stealing art treasures from a prominent Czech family when he was a Communist official in the post-war period.

The picture that emerges is a conspiracy of gentiles, part Jews and hidden Jews united by allegiance to a satanic world dictatorship (essentially an outgrowth of British imperialism.)

Winston Churchill, who was Jewish and the current Baron Jacob Rothschild, whose mother was not Jewish, fit this description.

There is a surprising list of American Presidents who are suspected of being Jewish or part-Jewish including Teddy Roosevelt, FDR, Eisenhower, and Lyndon Johnson.

It is possible that members of the Nazi hierarchy were also part Jewish.

Hitler's grandmother left the Rothschild's employment in Vienna when she became pregnant with Hitler's father.

In his 1964 book "Before Hitler Came" author Dietrich Bronder, a Jew himself, claims the following personages all had Jewish blood: Hesse, Goering, Strasser, Goebbels, Rosenberg, Frank, Himmler, von Ribbentrop, Heydrich and many more.

(Kardel, "Hitler Founder of Israel" p.4)

My own hypothesis is that WWII was contrived by the Illuminati to destroy German nationalism and nation/race concepts in general.

(They neglected to tell their Nazi branch about this, of course. This is behind Rudolf Hess' mission and imprisonment.)

The Illuminati also used the war to purge Europe of Jews who weren't allied to them.

The Jewish holocaust created a rationale for the State of Israel, which was intended to dominate the Middle East, serve as an excuse for WWII, and as capital of the future Masonic world government.

There is plenty of evidence that the Nazis collaborated with Zionists, and that the Zionists betrayed their Jewish brethren during the war.

Sabbatean Jews in the West prevented Jews from escaping from Europe.

(See also my "Zionism: Compulsory Suicide for Jews" and "Why the Jews Went Quietly")

"Zionism is but an incident of a far reaching plan," said leading American Zionist Louis Marshall, counsel for bankers Kuhn Loeb in 1917.

"It is merely a convenient peg on which to hang a powerful weapon."

The far-reaching plan is Illuminati world dictatorship. The Illuminati is the highest echelon of Freemasonry, an occult secret society dedicated to Lucifer.

The world's central bankers have intermarried with the richest dynastic families of Europe and America to bring about world hegemony.

They instigated wars and depressions to degrade and destroy humanity.

The American people have been financing their wars since 1914.

They undermine society by attacking its sources of communal resistance: race, religion, nation and family.

Jews are a convenient instrument for social dissolution because they don't belong to the majority religion or race.

(Homosexuality and lesbian feminism are used to dissolve family.)

Jews are easily brainwashed and can be placed in positions of power and influence.

They may suffer the consequences if the Illuminati no longer require their services, or if the people realize 9-11 and the War on Terror are a Neo-Con implemented fraud.

In the meantime, "the Jews" serve as a convenient scapegoat for the Illuminati.

It is easy to forget that the majority of Jews are patriotic citizens who would like to assimilate if only their country wasn't being dismantled.

They are not part of this world government agenda.

The leading Canadian nationalist is Mel Hurtig, a Jew.

In addition, it's easy to forget that non-Jewish national elites have betrayed their countries and succumbed to the Illuminati.

Look at the membership lists of the Illuminati "Skull and Bones" or elite "Pilgrim Society" to see that the vast majority of adherents are non-Jews.

Read "Secret Societies of America's Elite" by Steven Sora for the non-Jewish side of the criminal US Illuminati leadership.

Svali suggests a reason why the Illuminati hate religious Jews: "The Jews historically fought against the occult.

See Deuteronomy and the Old Testament for how God through the Jewish people tried to cleanse the land of the occult groups that were operating there, such as those who worshiped Baal, Ashtarte, and other Canaanite and Babylonian gods."

It's time Jews rediscovered this heritage and took up this mandate again.

In conclusion, a satanic heresy has corrupted Judaism.

These Satanists are part of the Illuminati and hate Jews possibly because Jews were supposed to represent a moral God, or for the usual racist reasons.

The long-term goal of the Illuminati is to divert mankind from its Divine purpose and subjugate and change it using sophisticated means of mind control (i.e. the mass media, "education," sexual "liberation," migration, diversity etc.)

Humanity is a prisoner in Lucifer's laboratory.

The King David Massacre:

The King David Hotel explosion of July 22, 1946 (Palestine), which resulted in the deaths of 92 Britons, Arabs and Jews, and in the wounding of 58, was not just an act of "Jewish extremists," but a premeditated massacre conducted by the Irgun in agreement with the highest Jewish political authorities in Palestine– the Jewish Agency and its head David-Ben-Gurion.

According to Yitshaq Ben-Ami, a Palestinian Jew who spent 30 years in exile after the establishment of Israel investigating the crimes of the "ruthless clique heading the internal Zionist movement," The Irgun had conceived a plan for the King David attack early in 1946, but the green light was given only on July first.

According to Dr. Sneh, the operation was personally approved by Ben-Gurion, from his self-exile in Europe. Sadeh, the operations officer of the Haganah, and Giddy Paglin, the head of the Irgun operation under Menachem Begin agreed that thirty-five minutes advance notice would give the British time enough to evacuate the wing, without enabling them to disarm the explosion.

The Jewish Agency's motive was to destroy all evidence the British had gathered proving that the terrorist crime waves in Palestine were not merely the actions of "fringe" groups such as the Irgun and Stern Gang, but were committed in collusion with the Haganah and Palmach groups and under the direction of the highest political body of the Zionist establishment itself, namely the Jewish Agency.

That so many innocent civilian lives were lost in the King David massacre is a normal part of the pattern of the history of Zionist outrages.

A criminal act is committed, allegedly by an isolated group, but actually under the direct authorization of the highest Zionist authorities, whether of the Jewish Agency during the Palestine Mandate or of the Government of Israel thereafter.

The following is a statement made in the House of Commons by then British Prime Minister Clement Attlee:

On July 22, 1946, one of the most dastardly and cowardly crimes in recorded history took place. We refer to the blowing up of the King David Hotel in Jerusalem.

Ninety-two persons lost their lives in that stealthy attack, 45 were injured, among whom there were many high officials, junior officers and office personnel, both men and women.

The King David Hotel was used as an office housing the Secretariat of the Palestine Government and British Army Headquarters.

The attack was made on 22 July at about 12 o'clock noon when offices are usually in full swing.

The attackers, disguised as milkmen, carried the explosives in milk containers, placed them in the basement of the Hotel and ran away.

The Chief Secretary for the Government of Palestine, Sir John Shaw, declared in a broadcast: "As head of the Secretariat, the majority of the dead and wounded were my own staff, many of whom I have known personally for eleven years. They are more than official colleagues.

British, Arabs, Jews, Greeks, Armenians; senior officers, police, my orderly, my chauffeur, messengers, guards, men and women— young and old— they were my friends.

"No man could wish to be served by a more industrious, loyal and honest group of ordinary decent people.

Their only crime was their devoted, unselfish and impartial service to Palestine and its people.

For this they have been rewarded by cold-blooded mass murder.”

Although members of the Irgun Z'vai Leumi took responsibility for this crime, yet they also made it public later that they obtained the consent and approval of the Haganah Command, and it follows, that of the Jewish Agency.

The King David Hotel massacre shocked the conscience of the civilized world.

On July 23, Anthony Eden, leader of the British opposition Conservative Party, posed a question in the House of Commons to Prime Minister Atlee of the Labor Party, asking “the Prime Minister whether he has any statement to make on the bomb outrage at the British Headquarters in Jerusalem.”

The Prime Minister responded:

“...It appears that, after exploding a small bomb in the street, presumably as a diversionary measure– this did virtually no damage– a lorry drove up to the tradesmen’s entrance of the King David Hotel and the occupants, after holding up the staff at pistol point, entered the kitchen premises carrying a number of milk cans.

At some stage of the proceedings, they shot and seriously wounded a British soldier who attempted to interfere with them.

All available information so far is to the effect that they were Jews.

Somewhere in the basement of the hotel they planted bombs which went off shortly afterwards.

They appear to have made good their escape.

“Every effort is being made to identify and arrest the perpetrators of this outrage.

The work of rescue in the debris, which was immediately organized, still continues.

The next-of-kin of casualties are being notified by telegram as soon as accurate information is available.

The House will wish to express their profound sympathy with the relatives of the killed and with those injured in this dastardly outrage."

The Massacre at Baldat al-Shaikh:

January 30-31, 1947(Palestine) : This massacre took place following an argument which broke out between Palestinian workers and Zionists in the Haifa Petroleum Refinery, leading to the deaths of a number of Palestinians and wounding and killing approximately sixty Zionists.

A large number of the Palestinian Arab workers were living in Baldat al-Shaikh and Hawasa, located in the southeast of Haifa.

Consequently, the Zionists planned to take revenge on behalf of fellow Zionists who had been killed in the refinery by attacking Baldat al-Shaikh and Hawasa.

On the night of January 30-31, 1947, a mixed force composed of the First Battalion of Palmakh and the Carmelie brigade (estimated at approximately 150 to 200 Zionist terrorists) launched a raid against the two towns under the leadership of Hayim Afinu'am.]

They focused their attack on the outskirts of Baldat al-Shaikh and Hawasa.

Taking the outlying homes by surprise as their inhabitants slept, they pelted them with hand grenades, then went inside, firing their machine guns.

The terrorist attack led to the deaths of approximately sixty citizens inside their homes, most of them women, elderly and children.

The attack lasted for an hour, after which the Zionists withdrew at 2:00 a.m., having attacked a large number of noncombatant homes.

According to a report written by the leader of the terrorist operation, "the attacking units slipped into the town and began working on the houses.

And due to the fact that gunfire was directed inside the rooms, it was not possible to avoid injuring women and children."

YEHIDA MASSACRE:

13 December 1947(Palestine) : men of the Arab village of Yehiday (near Petah Tekva, the first Zionist settlement to be established) met at the local coffee house when they saw a British Army patrol enter the village, they were reassured espeically that Jewish terrorists had murdered 12 Palestinians the previous day.

The four cars stopped in front of the cafe house and out stepped men dressed in khaki uniforms and steel helmets.

However, it soon became apparent that they had not come to protect the villagers.

With machine guns they sprayed bullets into the crowd gathered in the coffee house.

Some of the invaders placed bombs next to Arab homes while other disguised terrorists tossed grenades at civilians.

For a while it seemed as if the villagers would be annihilated but soon a real British patrol arrived to foil the well organized killing raid.

The death toll of 7 Arab civilians could have been much higher.

Earlier the same day 6 Arabs were killed and 23 wounded when home made bombs were tossed at a crowd of Arabs standing near the Damascus Gate in Jerusalem.

In Jaffa another bomb killed six more Arabs and injured 40.

KHISAS MASSACRE:

18 December 1947(Palestine) : Two carloads of Haganah terrorists drove through the village of Khisas (on the Lebanese Syrian border) firing machine guns and throwing grenades.

10 Arab civilians were killed in the raid.

QAZAZA MASSACRE:

19 December 1947(Palestine) : 5 Arab children were murdered when Jewish terrorists blew up the house of the village Mukhtar

The Semiramis Hotel Massacre:

5/7/1948(Palestine): The Jewish Agency escalated their terror campaign against Palestinian Arabs.

They decided to perpetrate a wholesale massacre by bombing the Semiramis Hotel in the Katamon section of Jerusalem, in order to drive out the Palestinians from Jerusalem.

The massacre of the Semiramis Hotel on January 5, 1948, was the direct responsibility of Jewish Agency leader David Ben-Gurion and Haganah leaders Moshe Sneh and Yisrael Galili.

If this massacre had taken place in World War II, they would have been sentenced to death for their criminal responsibility along with the terrorists who placed the explosives.

A description of the massacre of the Semiramis Hotel from the United Nations Documents follows, as well as the Palestinian Police report on the crime sent to the Colonial Office in London: January 5, 1948.

Haganah terrorists made a most barbarous attack at one o'clock in the early morning of Monday...at the Semiramis Hotel in the Katamon section of Jerusalem, killing innocent people and wounding many.

The Jewish Agency terrorist forces blasted the entrance to the hotel by a small bomb and then placed bombs in the basement of the building.

As a result of the explosion the whole building collapsed with its residents. As the terrorists withdrew, they started shooting at the houses in the neighborhood.

Those killed were: Subhi El-Taher, Moslem; Mary Masoud, Christian; Georgette Khoury, Christian; Abbas Awadin, Moslem; Nazira Lorenzo, Christian; Mary Lorenzo, Christian; Mohammed Saleh Ahmed, Moslem; Ashur Abed El Razik Juma, Moslem; Ismail Abed El Aziz, Moslem; Ambeer Lorenzo, Christian; Raof Lorenzo, Christian; Abu Suwan Christian family, seven members, husband, wife, and five children. Besides those killed, 16 more were wounded, among them women and children.

The following is a text of a cable by the High Commissioner for Palestine to the Colonial Office about the massacre: Jerusalem.

At approximately 0117 hours, a grenade was thrown into the Semiramis Hotel, Katamon Quarter, causing superficial damage but no casualties.

During the ensuing confusion, a charge was placed in the building and it exploded about one minute later, completely demolishing half the hotel.

Witnesses have stated that the perpetrators arrived by way of the Upper Katamon Road in two taxis.

Four persons are reported to have alighted from the first taxi, and one person, who apparently covered the main party, from the second.

All were wearing European clothes...

The Massacre at Dair Yasin:

9/4/1948(Palestine): The forces of the Zionist gangs Tsel, Irgun and Hagana, fitted out with the Zionist terrorist strategy of killing civilians in order to achieve their aspirations, began stealing into the village on the night of April 9, 1948.

Their purpose was to uproot the Palestinian people from their land by coming upon the inhabitants of the village unawares, destroying their homes and burning them down on top of those inside, thereby making clear to the entire world to what depths of barbarism Zionist had sunk.

The attack began as the children were asleep in their mothers' and fathers' arms.

In the words of Menachim Begin as he described events, "the Arabs fought tenaciously in defense of their homes, their women and their children."

SEARCH FOR TRUTH

The fighting proceeded from house to house, and whenever the Jews occupied a house, they would blow it up, then direct a call to the inhabitants to flee or face death.

Believing the threat, the people left in terror in hopes of saving their children and women.

But what should the Stern and Irgun gangs do but rush to mow down whoever fell within range of their weapons.

Then, in a picture of barbarism the likes of which humanity has rarely witnessed except on the part of the most depraved, the terrorists began throwing bombs inside the houses in order to bring them down on whoever was inside.

The orders they had received were for them to destroy every house.

Behind the explosives there marched the Stern and Irgun terrorists, who killed whoever they found alive.

The explosions continued in the same barbaric fashion until the afternoon of April 10, 1948.

Then they gathered together the civilians who were still alive, stood them up beside the walls and in corners, then fired on them.

About twenty-five men were brought out of the houses, loaded onto a truck and led on a "victory tour" in the neighborhood of Judah Mahayina and Zakhroun Yousif.

At the end of the tour, the men were brought to a stone quarry located between Tahawwu'at Shawul and Dair Yasin, where they were shot in cold blood.

Then the Etsel and Layhi “fighters” brought the women and the children who had managed to survive up to a truck and took them to the Mendelbaum Gate.

Finally, a Hagana unit came and dug a mass grave in which it buried 250 Arab corpses, most of them women, children and the elderly.

A woman who survived the massacre by the name of Halima Id describes what happened to her sister.

She says, “I saw a soldier grabbing my sister, Saliha al-Halabi, who was nine months pregnant.

He pointed a machine gun at her neck, then emptied its contents into her body.

Then he turned into a butcher, and grabbed a knife and ripped open her stomach to take out the slaughtered child with his iniquitous Nazi knife.”

In another location in the village, Hanna Khalil, a girl at the time, saw a man unsheathing a large knife and ripping open the body her neighbor Jamila Habash from head to toe.

Then he murdered their neighbor Fathi in the same way at the entranceway to the house.

A 40-year-old woman named Safiya describes how she was come upon by a man who suddenly opened up his trousers and pounced on her.

I began screaming and wailing.

But the women around me were all meeting the same fate.

After that they tore off our clothes so that they could fondle our breasts and our bodies with gestures too horrible to describe.”

Some of the soldiers cut off women's ears in order to get at a few small earrings.

Once news of the massacre had gotten out, a delegation from the Red Cross tried to visit the village.

However, they weren't allowed to visit the site until a day after the time they had requested. Meanwhile the Zionists tried to cover up the evidence of their crime.

They gathered up as much as they could of the victims' dismembered corpses, threw them in the village well, then closed it up.

And they tried to change the landmarks in the area so that the Red Cross representative wouldn't be able to find his way there.

However, he did find his way to the well, where he found 150 maimed corpses belonging to women, children and the elderly.

And in addition to the bodies which were found in the well, scores of others had been buried in mass graves while still others remained strewn over street corners and in the ruins of houses.

Afterwards, the head of the terrorist Hagana gang which had taken part in burying the Palestinian civilians wrote saying that his group had not undertaken a military operation against armed men, the reason being that they wanted to plant fear in the Arabs' hearts.

This was the reason they chose a peaceable, unarmed village, since in this way they could spread terror among the Arabs and force them to flee.

NASER AL-DIN MASSACRE:

13-14 April 1948 (Palestine) : a contingent of Lehi and Irgon entered this village (near Tiberias) entered the village on the night of 13 April dressed as Arab fighters.

Upon their entrance to the village the people went out to greet them, the terrorists met them with fire, killing every single one of them. Only 40 people survived.

All the houses of the village were raised to the ground.

THE TANTURA MASSACRE:

May 15, 1948 (Palestine): "From testimonies and information I got from Jewish and Arab witnesses and from soldiers who were there, at least 200 people from the village of Tantura were killed by Israeli troops...

"From the numbers, this is definitely one of the biggest massacres," Teddy Katz an Israeli historian said Tantura, near Haifa in northern Palestine, had 1,500 residents at the time.

It was later demolished to make way for a parking lot for a nearby beach and the Nahsholim kibbutz, or cooperative farm.

Fawzi Tanji, now 73 and a refugee at a camp in the West Bank, is from Tantura he said:

I was 21 years old then.

They took a group of 10 men, lined them up against the cemetery wall and killed them.

Then they brought another group, killed them, threw away the bodies and so on, Tanji said.

I was waiting for my turn to die in cold blood as I saw the men drop in front of me.

Katz said other Palestinians were killed inside their homes and in other parts of the village.

At one point, he said, soldiers shot at anything that moved.

BEIT DARAS MASSACRE:

21 May 1948(Palestine): after a number of failed attempts to occupy this village, the Zionists mobilized a large contingent and surrounded the village.

The people of Beit Daras decided that women and children should leave.

As women and children left the village they were met by the Zionist army who massacred them despite the fact that they could see they were women and children fleeing the fighting.

THE DAHMASH MOSQUE MASSACRE:

11 July 1948 (Palestine): after the Israeli 89th Commando Battalion lead by Moshe Dayan occupied Lydda, the Israelis told Arabs through loudspeakers that if they went into a certain mosque they would be safe.

In retaliation for a hand grenade attack after the surrender that killed several Israeli soldiers, 80-100 Palestinians were massacred in the mosque, their bodies lay decomposing for 10 days in the mid-summer heat.

The mosque still stands abandoned today.

This massacre spread fear and panic among the Arab population of Lydda and Ramle, who were then ordered to march out of these towns after they were stripped of all personal belonging by Israeli soldiers.

Yetzak Rabin, Brigade Commander then says: –

There was no way of avoiding the use of force and warning shots in order to make the inhabitants march ten to fifteen miles to the point where they met up with the legion-.

Most of the 60,000 inhabitants of Lyda and Ramble came to refugee camps near Ramallah, around 350 lost their lives on the way through dehydration and sun stroke. Many survived by drinking their own urine.

The conditions in the refugee camps were to claim more lives.

DAWAYMA MASSACRE:

On October 29 (Palestine): the Israeli army brutally massacred about 100 women and children, precipitating a massive flight of people from that village on the western side of the Hebron mountains.

Mr. Walid Khalidi, author of All That Remains, says that the Palestinian inhabitants at Dawayma faced one of the larger Israel massacres, though today it is among the least well-known.

The following are excerpts of a description of the massacre published in the Israeli daily 'Al ha Mishmar, quoted in All That Remains: The children they killed by breaking their heads with sticks.

There was not a house without dead...one commander ordered a sapper to put two old women in a certain house...and to blow up the house with them.

The sapper refused...the commander then ordered his men to put in the old women and the evil deed was done.

One soldier boasted that he had raped a woman and then shot her...

A former mukhtar (head of a village) of Dawayma interviewed in 1984 by the Israeli daily Hadashot, also quoted by Mr. Khalidi, offered another description: The people fled, and everyone they saw in the houses, they shot and killed.

They also killed people in the streets.

They came and blew up my house, in the presence of eye-witnesses...the moment that the tanks came and opened fire, I left the village immediately.

At about half-past ten, two tanks passed the Darawish Mosque.

About 75 old people were there, who had come early for Friday prayers.

They gathered in the mosque to pray. They were all killed.

About 35 families had been hiding in caves outside Dawayma, according to the mukhtar, and when the Israeli forces discovered them they were told to come out, line up, and begin walking.

"And as they started to walk, they were shot by machine guns from two sides...we sent people there that night, who collected the bodies, put them into a cistern, and buried them," the mukhtar told the Israeli daily.

HOULA MASSACRE:

26/10/1948 (Lebanon) :Houla is located in southern Lebanon, only a few kilometers from the Israeli border.

When Arab volunteers gathered to liberate Palestine from "Israeli" occupation, they established their headquarters in Houla, on hills overlooking Palestine.

The force was successful in fending off major attacks on Lebanese villages, but the fighters suddenly withdrew on October 26, 1948."

"Jewish militants attacked the town to avenge the residents' support of Arab resistance forces.

On October 31, Jewish militants dressed in traditional Arab attire entered the border village.

Residents gathered to cheer the men, thinking Arab volunteer fighters had returned.

They were wrong.

The militants rounded up 85 people and detained them in a number of houses, firing live ammunition at the civilians and killing all but three.

That was not enough. Jewish militants blew up the houses with dead corpses inside.

They confiscated property and livestock.

The three who survived the massacre, of whom one is still alive, and other town residents fled to Beirut.

Following the armistice agreement between Lebanon and "Israel" in 1949, village residents returned to find their houses in rubbles and their farms burnt.

Houla remains under Israeli occupation today, and has suffered the brunt of "Israeli" animosity towards Lebanon.

Only 1,200 out of 12,000 people remain in the village.

The Houla massacre was one of a series of massacres committed by "Israel" against Lebanese civilians.

Salha Massacre:

1948 (Lebanon) : After forcing the population together in the mosque of the village, the occupation forces ordered them to face the wall, then started shooting them from behind until the mosque was turned into bloodbath, 105 persons were martyred.Back to top

SHARAFAT MASSACRE:

7 February 1951 (Palestine): Israeli soldiers crossed the armistice line to this village (5Km from Jerusalem) and blew up the houses of the Mukhtar and his neighbors.

10 were killed (2 elderly men, Israeli soldiers crossed the armistice line to this village (5Km from Jerusalem) and blew up the houses of the Mukhtar and his neighbors. 10 were killed (2 elderly men, 3 women and 5 children) and 8 were wounded.

The Massacre at Qibya:

14-15/10/1953 (Palestine): On the night of October 14-15, 1953, this village was the object of a brutal "Israeli" attack which was carried out by units from the regular army as part of a pre-meditated plan and in which a variety of weapon types were used.

On the evening of October 14, an Israeli military force estimated at about 600 soldiers moved toward the village.

Upon arrival, it surrounded it and cordoned it off from all of the other Arab villages.

The attack began with concentrated, indiscriminate artillery fire on the homes in the village.

This continued until the main force reached the outskirts of the village.

Meanwhile, other forces headed for nearby Arab towns such as Shuqba, Badrus and Na'lin in order to distract them and prevent any aid from reaching the people in Qibya.

They also planted mines on various roads so as to isolate the village completely.

As units of the Israeli infantry were attacking the village residents, units of military engineers were placing explosives around some of the houses in the village and blowing them up with everyone in them under the protection of the infantrymen, who fired on everyone who tried to flee.

These acts of brutality continued until 4:00 a.m., October 15, 1953, at which time the enemy forces withdrew to the bases from which they had begun.

There was a particular sight the memory of which remained in the minds of all who saw it: an Arab woman sitting on a pile of debris and casting a forlorn look into the sky.

From beneath the rubble one could see small legs and hands which were the remains of her six children, while the bullet-maimed body of her husband lay in the road before her.

This vicious terrorist attack resulted in the destruction of 56 houses, the village mosque, the village school and the water tank which supplied it with water.

Moreover, 67 citizens lost their lives, both men and women, with many others wounded.

Terrorist Ariel Sharon, the commander of the "101" unit which undertook the terrorist aggression, stated that his leaders' orders had been clear with regard to how the residents of the village were to be dealt with.

He says, "The orders were utterly clear: Qibya was to be an example to everyone."

KAFR QASEM MASSACRE:

On October 29, 1956 (Palestine): the day on which Israel launched its assault on Egypt , units of Israel Frontier guards started at 4:00 PM what they called a tour of the Triangle Villages.

They told the Mukhtars (Aldermen) of those villages that the curfew from that day onwards was to start from 5:00 PM instead of the usual 6:00 PM, and that the inhabitants are requested to stay home.

The Mukhtar (Alderman) protested that there were about 400 villagers working outside the village and there was not enough time to inform them of the new times.

An officer assured him that they will be taken care of.

Meanwhile, the officers positioned themselves at the village entrance.

At about 4.55 PM, unaware of the ambush awaiting them, the innocent farmers started flocking in after a hard day of work.

The Israeli soldiers started stepping out of their military trucks and ordered the villagers to line up.

Then the officer in charge screamed "REAP THEM," and the soldiers riddled the bodies of the Palestinian villagers with bullets in cold blood.

With the massacre practically over, the soldiers moved around finishing off whoever still had a pulse in him.

The government of Israel took great pains to hide the truth, but after the investigation was concluded, Ben Gurion, the Israeli Prime Minister, announced that some people in the Triangle had been injured by the frontier guards.

The press also was part of the conspiracy to cover up the incident.

The Hebrew press wrote about a "mistake?" and a "misfortune", when it mentioned the victims, and it was difficult to tell whom it meant.

More absurd than the trial of accomplices was their light sentences.

The court found Major Meilinki and Lt. Daham guilty of killing 43 people and sentenced the former to 17 years and the latter to 15 years.

What was remarkable about the Israeli official attitude was that various authorities competed to lighten the killer's sentences.

Finally, the committee for the release of prisoners ordered the remission of a third of the prison sentence of all those who were convicted.

In September 1960, Daham was appointed in the municipality of the city of Ramle as officer for the Arab Affairs.

Khan Yunis Massacre:

3/11/1956 (Palestine): Another massacre is committed on November 3, 1956 when the Israelis occupy the town of Khan Yunis and the adjacent refugee camp.

The Israelis claim that there was resistance, but the refugees state that all resistance had ceased when the Israelis arrived and that all of the victims were unarmed civilians.

Many homes in Khan Yunis are raided at random.

Corpses lie everywhere and because of the curfew no one could go out to bury them.

(An UNRWA investigation later found that the Israelis at Khan Yunis and therefugee camp had murdered 275 civilians that day).

After the Israelis withdrew from Gaza under American pressure, a mass grave was unearthed at Khan Yunis in March 1957.

The grave contained the bodies of forty Arabs who had been shot in the back of the head after their hands had been tied.

("IMPERIAL ISRAEL", Michael Palumbo; London; Bloomsbury Publishing; 1990 pp. 30 – 32, citing UN General Assembly: Official Record, 11th session supplement, nop.)

The Massacre in Gaza City:

5/4/1956 (Palestine): On the evening of Thursday, April 5, 1956, Zionist occupation forces fired 20-mm mortar artillery on the city of Gaza.

The shelling was concentrated against the city center, which was teeming with civilians going about their day-to-day affairs.

Most of the shelling was directed against Mukhtar Street, Palestine Square and nearby streets, as well as the Shuja'iyya district.

As a result of this terrorist massacre carried out by gangs belonging to the Zionist Army against the Palestinian people, 56 people were killed and 103 were injured, the victims including men, women and children.

Some of the wounded died subsequently, bringing the death toll to 60, including 27 women, 29 men and 4 children.

The Massacre at the Sabra and Shatila Camps:

A number of events led to the decision of an extremist terrorist group of the Lebanese kata'ib forces and forces belonging to the Zionist Army to carry out massacres against the Palestinians.

From the beginning of the Zionist invasion of Lebanon, the Zionists and their agents were working toward being able to extirpate the Palestinian presence in Lebanon.

This may be seen from a number of massacres of which the world heard only little, carried out by Israeli forces and militias under their command in the Palestinian camps in south Lebanon (al-Rushaidiya, 'Ayn al-Hilu, al-Miya Miya, and others).

This massacre was thus the outcome of a long mathematical calculation.

It was carried out by groups of Lebanese forces under the leadership of Ilyas Haqiba, head of the kata'ib intelligence apparatus and with the approval of the Zionist Minister of Defense, Ariel Sharon and the Commander of the Northern District, General Amir Dawri.

High-level Israeli officers had been planning for some time to enable the Lebanese forces to go into the Palestinian camps once West Beirut had been surrounded.

Two days before the massacre began – on the evening of September 14 – planning and coordination meetings were held between terrorist Sharon and his companion, Eitan.

Plans were laid to have the kata'ib forces storm the camps, and at dawn, September 15, Israel stormed West Beirut and cordoned off the camps.

A high-level meeting was held on Thursday morning, September 16, 1982 in which Israel was represented by General Amir Dawri, Supreme Commander of the Northern Forces.

The job of carrying out the operation was assigned to Eli Haqiba, a major security official in the Lebanese forces.

The meeting was also attended by Fadi Afram, Commander of the Lebanese Forces.

The process of storming the camps began before sunset on Thursday, September 16, and continued for approximately 36 hours.

The Israeli Army surrounded the camps, providing the murderers with all the support, aid and facilities necessary for them to carry out their appalling crime.

They supplied them with bulldozers and with the necessary pictures and maps.

In addition, they set off incandescent bombs in the air in order to turn night into day so that none of the Palestinians would be able to escape death's grip.

And those who did flee – women, children and the elderly – were brought back inside the camps by Israeli soldiers to face their destiny.

At noon on Friday, the second day of the terrorist massacre, and with the approval of the Israeli Army, the kata'ib forces began receiving more ammunition, while the forces which had been in the camps were replaced by other, "fresh" forces.

On Saturday morning, September 18, 1982, the massacre had reached its peak, and thousands of Sabra and Shatila camp residents had been annihilated.

Information about the massacre began to leak out after a number of children and women fled to the Gaza Hospital in the Shatila camp, where they told doctors what was happening.

News of the massacre also began to reach some foreign journalists on Friday morning, September 17.

One of the journalists who went into the camps after the massacre reports what he saw, saying, "The corpses of the Palestinians had been thrown among the rubble that remained of the Shatila camp.

It was impossible to know exactly how many victims there were, but there had to be more than 1,000 dead.

Some of the men who had been executed had been lined up in front of a wall, and bulldozers had been used in an attempt to bury the bodies and cover up the aftermath of the massacre.

But the hands and feet of the victims protruded from the debris."

Hasan Salama (57 years old), whose 80-year-old brother was killed in the massacre, says, "They came from the mountains in thirty huge trucks.

At first they started killing people with knives so that they wouldn't make any noise.

Then on Friday there were snipers in the Shatila camp killing anybody who crossed the street.

On Friday afternoon, armed men began going into the houses and firing on men, women and children.

Then they started blowing up the houses and turning them into piles of rubble."

Author Amnoun Kabliyouk [p. 10] writes in his book about the tragedy of a young Palestinian girl who, like the rest of the children in the camp, faced this horrific massacre.

Thirteen years old, she was the only survivor out of her entire family (her father, her mother, her grandfather and all her brothers and sisters were killed).

She related to a Lebanese officer, saying, "We stayed in the shelter until really late on Thursday night, but then I decided to leave with my girl friend because we couldn't breathe anymore.

Then all of a sudden we saw people raising white flags and handkerchiefs and coming toward the kata'ib saying, 'We're for peace and harmony.'

And they killed them right then and there.

The women were screaming, moaning and begging [for mercy].

As for me, I ran back to our house and got into the bathtub. I saw them leading our neighbors away and shooting them.

I tried to stand up at the window to look outside, but one of the kata'ib fighters saw me and shot at me.

So I went back to the bathtub and stayed there for five hours.

When I came out, they grabbed me and threw me down with everybody else.

One of them asked me if I was Palestinian, and I said yes.

My nine-month-old nephew was beside me, and he was crying and screaming so much that one of the men got angry, so he shot him.

I burst into tears and told him that this baby had been all the family I had left.

That made him all the more angry, and he took the baby and tore him in two."

The massacre continued until noon on Saturday, September 18, leaving between 3,000 and 3,500 Palestinian and Lebanese civilians dead, most of them women, children and elderly people.

AL-AQSA MOSQUE MASSACRE:

October 8, 1990: As an extension of the Zionist policy based upon exercising control over the city of Jerusalem and emptying it of its [Arab] residents by various and sundry means, such as Zionist terrorism and shedding the blood of the Palestinian people – a policy which Zionists have acted upon on numerous occasions – Zionist authorities undertook on Monday, October 8, 1990 to carry out this heinous massacre against Palestinian worshippers.

Several days before the events of the massacre began, the “Temple Trustees” group distributed a statement to the media on the occasion of a religious festival of theirs which they call “the Throne Festival”.

SEARCH FOR TRUTH

In the statement the organization announced that it intended to stage a march to the Temple Mount (or so they call it).

The statement called upon Jews to participate in this march since, according to the statement, it would involve the decisive act of placing the foundation stone for what is called "the Third Temple."

In addition, the founder of the organization, Gershoun Salmoun, announced that "the Arab-Islamic occupation of the temple area must come to an end, and the Jews must renew their profound ties to the sacred area."

The march, in which 200,000 Jews took part, headed toward al-Aqsa Mosque in order for "the foundation stone" of the so-called "Third Temple" to be put in place.

At the same time, that is, at 10:00 a.m. and a half-hour before the beginning of the massacre, Israeli occupation forces began placing military barriers along various roads leading to Jerusalem in order to prevent Palestinians from getting to the city.

They also closed the doors of the mosque itself and forbid Jerusalem residents to go in.

However, thousands had already gathered inside the mosque before this time in response to calls from the imam of the mosque and the Islamic movement to protect the mosque and to prevent the "Temple Trustees" from storming it and perhaps even imposing Jewish control over it.

When the Muslim worshippers began resisting the Zionist group to prevent them from placing the "foundation stone" for their so-called temple, Zionist occupation forces began carrying out the massacre, using all the weapons at their disposal: poison gas bombs, automatic weapons, military helicopters, etc.

The soldiers, [Israeli] intelligence men and Jewish settlers resorted to firing live ammunition in the form of a continuous spray of machine-gun fire which came from all directions and in a well planned and coordinated fashion.

The result was that thousands of Palestinian worshippers of various ages and nationalities found themselves in a mass death trap.

Twenty-three Palestinians were killed, and 850 others were wounded to varying degrees.

The Israeli soldiers began firing at 10:30 a.m. and stopped 35 minutes later.

They opened fire on the Palestinian worshippers randomly and in cold blood.

Then they pursued them with clubs and rifles [outside the mosque].

Nurse Fatima Abu Khadir, who was wounded by a bullet which fractured her wrist, states, "We went into the mosque precincts in an ambulance.

I saw a large number of injured who had fallen on the ground.

Then I saw lots of soldiers, hundreds of soldiers.

They were about 30 meters from the ambulance and kneeling on one knee the way snipers do, and their weapons were aimed inside the ambulance.

After that I couldn't see anything.

News agencies described the blessed precincts of al-Aqsa Mosque saying that blood had covered "the entire two hundred meters between the Dome of the Rock and al-Aqsa Mosque.

Blood was flowing everywhere, all over the wide steps, and had stained the white tile the length of the broad courtyard, as well as the doors of both mosques.

The walls of the two mosques had long, crimson lines etched onto them by bleeding hands, and blood had stained the white uniforms of the woman first-aid workers.

Everyone – the wounded and the more fortunate, first-aid workers, journalists, and Israeli soldiers – all of them looked as though they were swimming in blood.

Physician Muhammad Abu 'Ayila relates what happened to him and to a wounded man to whom he had been trying to administer first aid, and how the Zionists' glee at the sight of Palestinian blood spilled in the precincts of the holy mosque had blinded their eyes so much that they couldn't distinguish between a young child and an old man, between a man and a woman, between a wounded man and one seeking to treat him.

He says, "I got out of the ambulance carrying a first-aid kit.

I was wearing a white uniform.

The soldiers saw me and knew I was a doctor.

But when I got to the wounded person nearest me and bent down to treat him, I got three bullets in my back in the region of the kidney.

At that very moment, the wounded man near me died.

But he could have been saved if I hadn't been hit.

Most of the wounds, in fact, were in the head and in the heart.

Then, in a farce designed to justify the crime which had been committed by Zionists' hands now stained with Palestinian blood, terrorist Yitzhaq Shamir, Prime Minister of the Zionist entity at that time, hastened to form a fact-finding committee which he called the "Zamir Committee" after its head, Tu'fi Zamir, former head of the Israeli Mossad.

As for the outcome of the committee's investigation, it was announced by Moshe Almert, head of the Media Office of the occupation government, who said, "The report confirms clearly that the responsibility and fault for escalating [the conflict] lies on the side of the thousands of Muslim extremists, who were attacking the holy place of the Jews."

THE IBRAHIMI MOSQUE MASSACRE:

February 25, 1994 (Palestine): While worshippers in the Ibrahimi Mosque in the city of Hebron were kneeling and prostrating before God, turning their faces toward the sacred house of God in the Friday dawn prayer on February 25, 1994, showers of treacherous Zionist bullets began raining down on them from all directions, felling more than 350 peaceable worshippers, some of whom were killed, and others wounded.

And thus began the second chapter of this terrorist massacre at the hands of terrorist settler Baroukh Goldstein and his helpers.

As for the first chapter, it had begun at the hour for the final evening prayer on Thursday, at which time Jewish settlers and soldiers prevented Muslim worshippers from entering the sacred mosque to perform the evening prayer under the pretext that this was the day of their "Boleme" feast.

Terrorist settlers gathered in the outer courtyards of the mosque and began setting off fireworks in the direction of the worshippers.

Some time after this, the occupation forces allowed them to go inside the mosque itself in groups.

At 10:00 p.m. the Muslim worshippers were asked to leave the mosque, and Zionist occupation soldiers began beating many of them as they left.

Hatim Qufaysha, a witness of the Zionist crime, says, "At 5:20 a.m. today everyone was standing up [in the mosque].

As I took off my shoes, I saw an old man wearing military clothes who was running along carrying a huge weapon loaded with ammunition. I was surprised to see him come into the mosque during the prayer.

He opened fire, and I ran away and asked the soldier who guards the area to intervene.

But all he did was beat me up, then I left the mosque area.

Eye witnesses who survived the massacre say, "We heard the sound of a muffled explosion.

It was followed by the whiz of bullets passing over the heads of the worshippers."

Talal Abu Sunayna, who was shot in both shoulders, adds, "I saw a settler hiding behind one of the pillars in the mosque' as he fired on the worshippers with his rifle.

Another [Jewish] settler stood beside him loading a second rifle so that it would be ready to go to work next."

Muhammad Sari, one of the worshippers present at the time of the massacre, states, "People are used to attending the dawn prayer on Fridays in large numbers."

He estimated the number of worshippers present that morning at about 500.

Then he added, "the muezzin announced the beginning of the prayer, so we knelt and made the first prostration.

Then all of a sudden we heard the sound of heavy gun fire coming from behind us.

When I turned around in the direction of the sound, I saw a soldier in full uniform.

He had put ear pieces in his ears, and he was holding a rapid-firing machine gun and firing in the direction of the worshippers."

Sari was wounded in both legs when he tried to stand up.

A number of young men were able to get over to where the attacker was and to protect others in the mosque with their bodies.

And within moments Goldstein had been brought to the ground by the young men.

But due to the heavy gun fire, the mosque had turned into something on the order of a slaughterhouse, filled with pools of blood. Muhammad Sulayman Abu Salih, a custodian at the Abrahamic mosque, describes the terrifying sight inside the mosque saying, "The terrorist was trying to kill as many people as possible.

The corpses were scattered all over, spattering the floor of the mosque with blood. Worshippers who had been prostrate tried to flee in terror, and some of them fell on the floor."

Then he adds, "I shouted at the top of my lungs to the soldiers to come and stop him, but all they did was run away.

The armed man reloaded his rifle at least once and killed at least seven people at one time, the contents of their skulls scattering all over the floor.

He kept on shooting for ten minutes, and the army didn't step in until the massacre was over."

Sheikh Ibrahim Abdeen, the imam of the mosque, says that the bullets were coming from several places, that it was a true blood bath.

The Israeli soldiers' reaction was very slow; they actually delayed the arrival of the ambulances.

Nor did this terrorist massacre stop with the killing of Goldstein. When the shooting stopped, the soldiers came pouring into the mosque.

According to witnesses of the massacre, the soldiers, together with a number of Jewish settlers, opened fire on those who had gathered around Goldstein, and not one of them survived.

And thus occurred the second massacre.

Then outside the mosque, the soldiers opened fire on the ambulance which had arrived at the mosque to treat the wounded; thus occurred the third massacre, which itself did not stop there, since the soldiers pursued the wounded and those seeking to treat them as far as the doors of the hospitals, where they proceeded to kill even more.

Other forces pursued their victims' funeral processions as far as the cemetery gates, where they killed still more.

Hence, this heinous massacre carried out against worshippers at the Ibrahimi Mosque led to more than 24 deaths and injured hundreds of others.

THE JABALIA MASSACRE:

28 March 1994, A Jewish undercover police opened fire on Palestinian activists brutally killing 6 and injuring 49.

Some of the wounded activists were taken out of their cars and shot in their heads to death.

Aramta Massacre:

15/4/1994(Lebanon): After blockading the town, armed men entered and ordered the people to gather at the town's square, where they were assaulted.

Then, they took the men and women to the detention camp. Later on they stormed, the district of the town, and killed whomever they saw.

2 persons were killed, 6 were wounded.

ERETZ CHECKPOINT MASSACRE:

17 July 1994, Palestinian sources reported that the occupation forces had committed Sunday morning a disgusting massacre against Palestinian workers at Eretz checkpoint.

Eyewitnesses and Israeli sources reported that 11 Palestinians have been shot dead and 200 injured.

Israeli sources also reported that 21 Israeli soldiers including 1 settler were injured.

Two soldiers were shot by bullets, one died.

As reported by Palestinian and Israeli sources, the scene was described as a war zone which lasted for 6 hours.

Four Israeli tanks and helicopters were brought by the occupation forces, while a number of settlers were taking part in firing at Palestinians.

Protests had spread all over the Occupied Territories.

In Gaza, Palestinians raised black flags and called for revenge.

In Ramallah, shops closed while several clashes were reported.

Several clashes were reported at Hebron University yesterday, and today two Palestinians were shot in Hebron.

Deir Al-Zahrani Massacre:

5/8/1994(Lebanon): The Israeli warplanes fired a "vacuum" missile at a two-story building, in Deir Al-Zahrane which was destroyed over the heads of the inhabitants. 8 people were killed, 17 were injured.

Mnsuriah Massacre:

On 13 April 1996, at about 1:30 P.M., an IDF helicopter fired rockets at a vehicle carrying thirteen civilians fleeing the village of al-Mansuri, killing two women and four young girls.

The vehicle was a Volvo station wagon with a blue flooding light, a red crescent painted on the hood and the word “ambulance” written in Arabic.

Reporters at the scene filmed the incident.

The film footage shows, and testimony of UN soldiers who arrived immediately after the car was hit corroborate, that there were no weapons or any other type of military equipment in the car, only some food and clothes. Amnesty’s investigation revealed that none of the passengers were connected to Hizbullah.

Nabatyaih Massacre:

18 April 1996, Eleven persons were killed and ten injured in an IDF air attack on a house in Nabatiyya al-Faqwah, some three kilometers north of Nabatiyya, in South Lebanon.

Eight of those killed were from one family: a mother and her seven children, including a four-day-old baby.

Around 6:30 a.m., IDF helicopters fired rockets at three buildings in the village, demolishing one totally and severely damaging the other two. Lebanese families were living in the buildings.

The IDF Spokesperson claimed that the helicopters fired at the building in which the eleven were killed because Hizbullah was hiding there after firing the mortars.

Investigations conducted by Amnesty and HRW did not confirm this contention The IDF’s statement ignored the fact that the IDF fired at two other buildings during the same attack.

Qana Massacre :

18 April 1996, The “ethnic cleansing” operations carried out by the Zionist terrorist army have encompassed not only Palestinian civilians, but Lebanese civilians in south Lebanon as well.

In an attempt to break the power of the Lebanese Hizbollah organization, Zionist forces undertook a military operation against south Lebanon.

This operation was likewise based upon the Zionist mentality, supportive as it is of blood-letting and terrorism and based upon the belief that “exercising pressure against Lebanese citizens . . . will lead in practical terms to comprehensive, overall pressure on account of which the Hizbollah organization will be obliged to adhere to a ceasefire.”

Given this reasoning, the Zionist forces bombed the shelter which was providing refuge to approximately five hundred Lebanese, most of whom were children, elderly and women who had been forced out of their homes by Israeli raids on their villages, and who had been unable to get to Beirut.

This bombing led to the deaths of 109 Lebanese civilians and seriously wounded 116 others.

During the attack, Israeli forces used between 5 and 6 advanced bombs designed to explode above their target in order to cause the largest possible number of casualties.

Moreover, international investigations confirmed that the Israeli forces had deliberately targeted the shelter.

Ali, one of those wounded in the attack, says, "I fled in the morning with two friends and went for refuge to the emergency forces in Qana.

I had my wife and my four children with me.

They led us into a shelter where there were about fifty people.

Then suddenly the sound of bombing rang out.

A first shell, then a second fell near the shelter, and as we were trying to get out, another shell hit the shelter directly.

I don't know what happened to my wife and children."

Fadi Jabir weeps as he talks about things he saw after the Israeli bombs fell on those who had left their homes to come to the base for the UN Fayjiya peace-keeping forces.

He says, "I heard people shouting 'Allahu akbar!', and a woman fell down unconscious.

I reached out to get an idea what had happened to her, and her brain fell into my hand."

As for Sa'd Allah Balhas, who was wounded by a piece of shrapnel in the Zionist massacre, he says, "In one second I lost everything: my children, 14 of my grandchildren, and my wife.

I don't want to live anymore. Tell the doctors to let me die."

Trqumia Massacr:

March 10 1998 :Israeli Occupied West Bank, March 10–Israeli soldiers opened fire with automatic weapons on a van full of unarmed Palestinian workers, killing Adnan Abu Zneid, 34, and two other Palestinians.

Two more laborers were wounded as the group returned from helping to construct a building near Tel Aviv.

Eyewitnesses described the Israeli gunfire as “indiscriminate.”

Israeli Army Maj. Uzi Dayan said that the soldiers acted “according to regulations” in opening fire on the van with automatic weapons at a checkpoint outside Hebron.

Ali Abu Zneid, 37, a cousin of the deceased, was in the van and fell uninjured under the others’ bodies. He said that the Jewish soldiers, “shot to kill.”

Israeli Defense Minister Yitzhak Mordechai described the killings as an “accident”

Janta Massacre :

22/12/1998 (Lebanon): Israeli warplanes waited for the children to come home from the field to embrace their mother when they carried out this savage attack. Mother and her 6 children

24 Of June 1999 Massacres

24/6/1999 (Lebanon) Martyrs: 8 Injures: 84 Target: Under Building in Beirut In an interview with the “kolhaer” magazine, five Israeli soldiers said that the artillery commander had said to his soldiers “We are skilled marksmen.

Anyhow, there are millions of Arabs...

It's their problem. Whether Arabs become one more or less is just the same...

We have accomplished our duty.

The whole issue is not about more than a group of "Arabosheem" (a racist term hostile to Arabs used by the Israelis). We should have launched more shells to kill more Arabs.

Western Bekaa villages Massacre:

29/12/1999 (Lebanon): The Israeli warplanes dropped bombs on the children who were celebrating the "eid" festival, killing eight children and wounding 11 others.

These are just some of the massacres committed against the Palestinians and Lebanese by the Zionists.

If the raids on southern Lebanon old and new were to be taken into account the true magnitude of Zionist crimes against humanity could start to emerge.

If one were to go into the gruesome details of the atrocities committed in 1948 the -mopping up operations the deliberate humiliation and massacres of Arabs and the desecration of the holy places of both Muslim and Christian as well as the looting of these holy places and personal property by the Israeli army and settlers; one might just start to appreciate what Zionism is all about.
